CONTEST A 23-year-old from Dartmouth just missed out on being Canada's Next Great Prime Minister.

Robert Marsh finished as the runner-up of the CBC series last night, placing second to Amy Marlene Robichaud of Calgary. Robichaud walks away with $50,000 and several paid internships.

Marsh, a former student council president at Prince Andrew High School who also spent time as mascot of the Halifax Mooseheads, was trying to earn the highest percentage of votes from the studio audience.

Each of the four finalists faced debates and challenges last night, all under the watchful eye of the four judges — former prime ministers Brian Mulroney, Joe Clark, Kim Campbell and Paul Martin.

Marsh now lives in Toronto where he works for an insurance company.

Service spoke of perilous way of life working at sea

They lined the stairs leading to balconies, filled the church aisles and stood all along the walls, the seats having been filled at least an hour before the service last night at the Roman Catholic Basilica of St. John the Baptist — more than 1,000 people coming to pay respects after a monumental tragedy.

It was a deeply spiritual and sombre prayer service in St. John's that spoke to the horrendous perils of earning a living at sea, but also spoke of hope for overcoming the astounding loss of life last week.

"We are gathered this evening to offer our prayers to families of passengers and crew of Cougar Helicopters Flight 491, which crashed tragically last Thursday morning," said Rev. Edison Wiltshire, director of EZRA Chaplaincy, which attended to the families in the wake of the crash.

Salvation Army Lt.-Col. Raymond Rowe, president of the council of churches, remarked Newfoundlanders and Labradorians have been drawing their living from the sea for 500 years — from fishing and sealing and other enterprises, and lately from the oil and gas industry.

"Inherent in this way of life is danger," Rowe said.

And the province was sadly reminded of that peril last Thursday when Flight 491 went down at 9:48 a.m. on its way to Hibernia and Sea Rose.

The names of all 17 who died aboard the flight, including 47-year-old Ken MacRae of Greenwood, were read out at the ecumenical service, and there was an outpouring of wishes for recovery for the sole survivor, Robert Decker.

Yesterday's service drew family members and friends of those aboard the helicopter, along with dignitaries such as Prime Minister Stephen Harper, Newfoundland Premier Danny Williams and federal Defence Minister Peter MacKay.

3,045 complaints for Metro Transit

PAUL MCLEOD
paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

Alleged racial profiling and fake seal clubbing aside, there were a lot of complaints against Metro Transit drivers last year.

In total there were 3,045 complaints against bus drivers — an average of about eight per day.

Of course, the majority of complaints were of a much different nature

"Considering we have about 25 million transactions between a bus driver and a passenger per year, the number in that case is quite small."

Deborah Story, HRM

than the above listed high-profile incidents that have put Metro Transit in the headlines these past two weeks.

Nine hundred and twenty-three of the complaints were about driving, such as cutting someone off or breaking too fast.

The other 2,122 were based on bus driver behaviour, which encompasses any time a passenger didn't like how a bus driver handled something.

While seeming like a lot, HRM communications manager Deborah Story said the numbers aren't bad when put in perspective.

"Considering we have about 25 million transactions between a bus driver and a passenger per year, the number in that case is quite small when you compare it to the total opportunities for problems," she said.

Story said Metro Transit tries to followup on all complaints, but sometimes it doesn't have enough information or the complainant doesn't want any action taken.

"The type of things we experienced in the last couple weeks, we don't get much of that," she said.

Seeking ban to parking ban

paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

You've got to fight for your right to parking.

That's what some HRM councillors plan to do to prevent Halifax's blanket winter parking ban from returning next year.

The controversial ban ended Tuesday night after the city collected more than $436,000 from handing out 17,468 tickets.

Municipal staff said the ban, which prevents cars from parking on the roads overnight regardless of the weather, is necessary for snow removal. But it causes lots of frustration for residents without drive-ways and bar owners who say it hurts business.

And some councillors want to see things change for next year.

"I'm certainly going to put forth the effort to see if we can change this," said Downtown Halifax Coun. Dawn Sloane.

"We pay high taxes to live in the downtown and we are the ones who fund a lot of projects in the municipality. But we are being dinged every time we turn around when it comes to parking."

Sloane presented a mo-

Coun. Dawn Sloane poses in front of a row of parked cars on Creighton Street. Sloane isn't a fan of the overnight parking ban and would like to see it dropped next year.

tion several weeks ago to kick off a set of public consultations on changing the ban. Council approved the motion, though no schedule has been set up yet.

Sloane is promoting a system where cars can only park on one side of the street one night while the other is plowed. The next night the side would switch to clear the other side. Another option is simply banning parked cars in the times after a snowfall.

But the decision ultimately is going to come down to residents, according to Connaught-Quin-pool Coun. Jennifer Watts.

She thinks there are some problems with the winter parking ban, and will be basing her vote on what the public has to say.

"I would be very interested in sitting down and evaluating what happened this year with residents, with traffic staff and with police and figuring out, is there another option that we could have to a total parking ban?" she said.

Man charged with criminal harassment

COURT A 42-year-old man was in court yesterday facing several charges for allegedly pointing a pellet gun at a nine-year-old boy from the window of his residence on the 100 block of Melrose Avenue in Fairview on Tuesday night.

According to Halifax Regional Police spokeswoman Theresa Rath, the boy was playing outside at his ground floor apartment across the street, and when looking towards the man's window, saw a gun pointed at him. The boy immediately ran home and told his mother, who called police.

"We attended and dealt with the individual. He was quite belligerent with us," Rath said. "We determined it was in fact a pellet gun and he was arrested and brought to our booking facility where he was held until court (yesterday) morning."

At Halifax provincial court yesterday, Kevin W. Snow was arraigned on charges of criminal harassment, using an imitation firearm while committing an indictable offence and possession of a weapon for a dangerous purpose.

Snow has been released on recognizance and is back in court on June 1 for election and plea.

News in brief

SUSPECTS Halifax Regional Police continues its search for three suspects after a man was stabbed and another woman sprayed with pepper spray at Penhorn Mall in Dartmouth on Tuesday evening. The incident took place at about 8 p.m. in the rear parking lot of the mall. The male victim was taken to the QEII Health Sciences Centre with non-life threatening injuries. The suspects are all white males. One, about 22 to 23 years of age wore a brown suede jacket. The other two suspects were about 18 or 19, with one wearing a white ball cap. Police say the act wasn't random as one of the suspects was known to the victim.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY Twenty-two people were locked up for the night on St. Patrick's Day by Halifax Regional Police for being drunk in a public place. Halifax Regional Police spokeswoman Theresa Rath said the number is high for a weekday, but falls in line with the normal weekend numbers.

Canada has lessons to teach new world: MP

JON TATTRIE
for Metro Halifax

A globalized, Obama-age world needs a bigger Canada to match the bigger challenges, Ken Dryden said in Halifax yesterday.

The hockey legend and member of Parliament from Ontario was speaking to students at Saint Mary's University about the need for a "new story" of Canada.

"If you have the wrong story, you get the wrong answer," the MP for York Central told the crowd. "Because of our French and English past, of different languages and different cultures, religions and laws, because we have people inside our borders today from almost everywhere, we are a country that has learned to live together."

As many other countries, particularly the U.S., come to embrace a collaborative rather than unilateral approach to international issues, they will turn to "dull" Canada for lessons. But lacking an inspirational leader like U.S. president Barack Obama, Canadians operate under a low ceiling that limits our economic, ecological, social and international ambitions, he said.

Dryden, who won six Stanley Cups in his eight years with the Montreal Canadiens, pointed to the old "I am Canadian" beer commercials as an example of what's wrong with Canadian identity.

"When they faced the challenge of 'What next?' they had no followup. The campaign hadn't really been about 'I am Canadian,' but more about 'I am not American.'"

He asked how the world would be a poorer place without Canada, citing our vast natural resources and our immigration-fired innovation, but focused on Canada's history of finding peaceful solutions to conflict within our borders and beyond as our great gift.

"We have no history of civil war. On matters that might have led to the break up of our country, we held two referendums. We have in our federal government a major party whose purpose is an independent Quebec," he said. "It may be the only real obligation of Canadian citizenship: We get along."

Don't write off winter: Expert

Climatologist says Halifax gets 19 per cent of its snowfall in spring

JON TATTRIE
For Metro Halifax

Spring starts tomorrow, and that means we only have one-fifth of our average annual snowfall ahead of us.

"The first day of spring is one thing; the first spring day is another," says Dave Phillips, senior climatologist with Environment Canada.

"Don't write the obituary for winter just yet."

A collective winter fatigue grips Haligonians in March, causing us to think the city ought to be hot and snow-free.

"If the past is a guide to the future, then don't put away the snow shovel. There has never been an April without snow in Halifax. In fact annually, 19 per cent of your snowfall happens after the first day of spring," Phillips reveals.

The man nicknamed "the father of the long-term forecast" adds that two-thirds of our Mays have snowfall.

He's predicting cooler conditions over the next 30 days.

"Don't put away the snow shovel. There has never been an April without snow in Halifax."

Dave Phillips, senior climatologist

"Be a little more patient, get through March and a chunk of April, and then we can see the days we can call that winter is at an end."

The problem is even if warm air drifts up from the south, the cold Atlantic refrigerates it.

Once here, it's got to get to work melting the icebergs floating down the St. Lawrence and burning off the leftover snow before it can heat the air.

Student Sebastien Labelle juggles in the warm sunshine yesterday as he and other members of Students Mobilizing for Action on Campus (SMAC) distribute information on the Dalhousie campus.

Sunday and then we can expect "early maple syrup weather," with temperatures creeping above freezing in the day, but falling back into the deep freeze overnight.

The ocean gives us cold springs, but slowly warms over the summer. "You pay for it now, but you gain it in the fall," Phillips says.

"If there's one thing we're united on in this country, it's the need to end winter," the weather guru concludes.

He does have a bit of good news for Maritimers. "We haven't been bombarded by flower counts from Victoria. They've been buried in snow."

NDP wants tax credit to stem job losses

JON TATTRIE

CREDIT The NDP is calling for a manufacturing-and-processing tax credit it says would help Nova Scotian communities stem job losses.

"The Atlantic Provinces Economic Council today said a decline in production and exports is having a direct impact on job losses in many Nova Scotia communities," Nova Scotia NDP Leader Darrell Dexter said in a release.

"A manufacturing and processing tax credit would help counter-balance these losses. Investing in our communities, jobs and families is the best way to ensure all of Nova Scotia's communities are strong when the U.S. economic depression ends."

The report, released yesterday, showed further signs of economic slowdown.

It said exports and manufacturing shipments shrank in the fourth quarter of 2008, predicting that trend would continue, leading to more closures in the forestry, auto parts and agriculture sectors.

Dexter said an NDP government would introduce a provincial 10 per cent manufacturing-and-processing tax credit.

Actress may be NDP star candidate

The NDP is looking at running a Hollywood actress to be its candidate in Truro-Bible Hill.

Lenore Zann confirmed this week to the Truro Daily News she has been asked by local riding representatives to carry the official Opposition's banner during the next provincial election.

"I am considering it. I haven't made up my mind for sure yet," Zann said. "I am flattered. I am a life-long NDP and I believe in their mandates and I love (leader) Darrell Dexter."

Zann, 49, has had numerous roles in theatre, TV shows and movies as an actress and has been the voice of other characters such as Rogue from X-Men. She moved home last year and is spearheading a project to turn the Normal College into a school for the performing arts. "I really love my hometown and I want to try and make it the best place on Earth."

Incumbent MLA Jamie Muir has announced he is not re-offering in the riding. So far Ray Tynes and Hughie MacIsaac are the only two people to declare their intentions to offer for the Conservative nomination.

More than 640 rescued: Military

Sri Lanka's navy rescued more than 640 people who fled the island's war zone in a clutch of small boats as Tamil Tiger rebels opened fire, the military said yesterday, but tens of thousands remained trapped.

The military has the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) cornered in 28 square kilometres of the Indian Ocean island's northeast, and is battling to deal a final blow to their 25-year separatist rebellion.

At least 18 more rebels were killed in the latest clashes in the shrinking war zone, a military official said yesterday.

The UN children's agency UNICEF said hundreds of children were among the 2,800 civilians who have been killed in fighting already, and warned that many more were still at risk. The government calls the figures unsubstantiated.

The United Nations said last week the Tigers were

Richardson dead

Actress passes just days after ski accident

Natasha Richardson, a member of Britain's Redgrave acting dynasty, died yesterday at age 45 after suffering a severe brain injury in a skiing accident in Montreal earlier this week.

Richardson had been hospitalized in New York since Tuesday, surrounded by her husband, actor Liam Neeson, her two sons, Michael, 13, and Daniel Jack, 12, and members of her immediate family including her mother, actress Vanessa Redgrave.

Richardson was injured Monday when she fell on a beginners' slope during a private ski lesson at the Mont Tremblant resort, about 75 miles north of Montreal.

A spokeswoman for the resort said she appeared to be in good condition after the fall, but her instructor called a ski patrol to take her to the bottom of the hill.

About an hour later, she complained of a severe headache and was admitted to a local medical facility before eventually being transferred to a Montreal hospital where she was diagnosed with severe brain trauma.

Tuesday afternoon, with Neeson by her side, she was flown to New York and admitted to the Lenox Hill Hospital, where her family rushed to her bedside in her final hours.

British actress Natasha Richardson and husband, actor Liam Neeson, arrive at the premiere of the film Dreamgirls in New York in this picture taken Dec. 4, 2006.

Richardson followed her Oscar-winning mother and her father, the late film director Tony Richardson, into a career on stage and screen in England and the United States.

She was perhaps best known worldwide for film roles that included playing a young Lindsay Lohan's mother in the 1998 remake of The Parent Trap and for her role in the Jennifer Lopez romantic comedy Maid in Manhattan.

Her latest movie role was as a strict English boarding school headmistress in the 2008 teen comedy Wild Child.

Richardson and Neeson, 56, worked together on the 1994 Jodie Foster drama Nell. The couple married in July 1994 and had Michael and Daniel Jack.

Her first marriage, to filmmaker Robert Fox, lasted two years. REUTERS

Putting love on layaway

Relating

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/collins

I've always been leery of the contingency proposal, that semi-joking suggestion made, perhaps to a friend or an ex or someone else fondly regarded but deemed unfit for current consumption, "Hey, if we both turn 40 and neither of us is married, we should hook up."

Something always struck me as somewhat insulting about this arrangement, which is generally floated when 40 seems a long way off. In that distant future, the reasoning goes, the fear of dying alone might overcome the just-friends failure of chemistry, the countervailing fear of tanking a friendship or whatever er else is keeping the so-called couple from coupling right now.

If it's not a left-handed compliment, it's certainly an ambidextrous one. The equivalent of saying we have so much in common that you just might be the one for me, but you come second to everyone else in the world I haven't met yet. So I'll keep your resumé on file. If nobody good shows up, you're in!

As a rule, any wrinkle of relationship behaviour that actually appeared in an episode of Friends (as I believe this did) should be viewed with great suspicion as a stunt to be tried at home. Is not marrying really so unthinkable?

But a few friends of mine have said this to one another, however frivolously, and eventually 40 beckons from less impossibly far away.

Discussions occurred recently between two of these friends. It wouldn't be appropriate to air these sensitive negotiations in the media. (I already feel a little wrong about exploiting them for a column, but a deadline's a deadline.) Let's call them, for the sake of our continued friendship, uh, "him" and "her."

Both are successful and attractive, not obviously deformed in character or dragging any disproportionate load of disappointments. This is no nostalgic Facebook booty call from a half-remembered high school acquaintance. They just can't seem to dismiss the idea of each other as the one that maybe got away.

They've remained uncommonly close over the years, and commiserated as things didn't work out with other people. Did the constant presence of such a close, and oppositely sexed, friend play a role in all that not working out with the others? It's possible.

The irony in a relationship so much thought about and never consummated is that as years go by, it can seem a bigger and bigger deal. What was supposed to be a nice safe backup plan now seems emotionally perilous itself.

It's always going to take a leap, no matter how long you perch at the edge.

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

What's blowin' in the wind?

Bob Dylan has sung about wind many times — winds of change, the "Idiot Wind," and the winds that hit heavy on the borderline.

But some of his California neighbours Tuesday were singing a new tune about what is blowin' in the wind from his Malibu toilet.

A family living near the 67-year-old folk and rock icon's house in the posh California beachside community of Malibu have complained to city officials about an outdoor portable toilet used by people on the compound.

Cindy and David Em-minger say the toilet wafts fumes from waste treatment chemicals, and that the smell carried by breezes from the Pacific Ocean has made their family feel ill.

A spokesman for Dylan did not return calls on his toilet.

Women should seize the power of choice

InStep

Christine Williams

International Women's Day fuelled countless followup discussion forums about women's liberation.

A couple of them grabbed my attention: the Vatican singling out the washing machine as the greatest liberator, and given this year's IWD anti-violence theme, the disclosure that Rihanna reunited with Chris Brown after an alleged beating. She was called a poor role model. Women face a myriad of choices and it's a great travesty when we fail to appreciate the power of choice. Ann Coulter's rendition of the single-mom curse in her latest controversial book: "Guilty" crudely highlighted this.

In it, she condemns the modern portrayal of the single unwed mother as the innocent, perennial victim, denouncing them for foisting a host of costly social ills upon society.

Although, many of Coulter's foes would take fiendish delight in imagining her burnt at the stake, there is a message to decipher in her acrid approach to confronting the poignant social malady of single motherhood: the misuse of the power of choice.

The choices North American women have today came at great toil and we have reason to celebrate the history of our sisterhood. Women were key players in the 19th century abolitionist movement. The first organizers for women's rights started by working perilously with black women who had escaped slavery and wanted to learn how to read and write. Yet it was a momentous display of unity for the rights of all women. In 1848, the Declaration of Sentiments was finally ratified, proclaiming men and women to be created equal, giving women legal, social and voting rights.

We've come a long way baby, because now we can choose. Recently, I was horrified when an older lady called our talk show — On the Line — to say that she stayed with an abusive husband for decades because one church leader told her to. We delude and denigrate ourselves by allowing others to define our self worth, including celebrities like Rihanna.

Young women's role models were meant to be those of their own household. If it's a dysfunctional one, the cycle must end somewhere. There is help for those willing to reach out from beneath the veneers of pain and pretexts in a genuine search for wholeness.

No physical invention, including the washing machine — or even law — can free someone from the shackles of the mind. Such advancements however provide opportunity that we should never take for granted: the opportunity of choice.

Layoffs, asset sales still possible amid struggles

Asset sales and layoffs are still on the table at the CBC after the public broadcaster's board of directors approved its budget for the next 12 months, a CBC spokesman said yesterday.

To cope with the weak ad market, the CBC is looking at a wide swath of options, from selling radio and television assets to adding more American TV programming to its schedule and consolidating local stations.

Airing ads on the CBC's radio services is not being considered, Dube said.

Madoff accountant charged

WALL STREET An accountant for confessed swindler Bernard Madoff's firm was charged with fraud yesterday after authorities said he pretended to audit the company that cheated thousands in Wall Street's biggest investment scheme.

The accountant, David Friebling, 49, who ran a small storefront firm in a New York suburb, is the first person besides Madoff to be arrested on criminal charges in the fraud. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission filed civil charges against Friebling.

The SEC said in its complaint that Friebling and his firm "did not perform anything remotely resembling an audit" of Madoff's money-management firm or try to confirm that stocks that Madoff had purportedly bought for customers even existed. REUTERS

Huskies finally get their banner

matthew.wuest@metronews.ca

The Saint Mary's Huskies are heading to nationals as Atlantic University Sport men's hockey champions.

The Huskies, a good team for a long time, finally have a banner to back it up after ending a seven-year title drought last night in Fredericton, N.B., with a 5-1 win over the New Brunswick Varsity Reds at a sold-out Aitken Centre.

In the third game of the best-of-three series, the Huskies avenged a home-ice loss to the V-Reds in last year's final.

"I don't think it could have been a worse feeling last year, with them beating us in our own rink," said Huskies sophomore defenceman Andrew Hotham. "To come up here and win Game 3 in their rink, it's an unbelievable feeling."

"Now we know how they felt last year."

star, scored the game's first two goals in the first period. John Scott Dickson put the V-Reds on the board early in the second, but Marc Rancourt responded before the frame ended and Cody Thornton made it 4-1 in the third. Scott Brophy iced it with an empty-netter down the stretch.

The Huskies had lost 5-1 in Game 1 in Fredericton and forced a third game with a 3-2 win in Game 2 at the Forum.

"Quite a series," said

Huskies head coach Trevor Stienburg. "Starting off the way we did up here in Game 1, who would have thought? The guys rose to the occasion."

The Huskies' prolific power play was a key, scoring three times last night. Their penalty kill was up to snuff, too, locking down the V-Reds on 29 of 30 power plays in the series.

Their five goals came on just 18 shots, while Huskies stopper Brandon Verge allowed just one goal on 28 shots. The Fall River native was named championship MVP.

The win was especially meaningful for Stienburg, who missed the first half of the season with a series of ailments: Pancreatitis; a stomach infection; and a perforated bowel.

"When we first got here, we couldn't recognize him (from loss of weight)," said Hotham.

"For him to battle as hard as he did ... all he wanted was come back and coach our team. He's our leader and for him to be happy is a great feeling."

Both the Huskies and the V-Reds will attend the University Cup in Thunder Bay, Ont., from March 26 to 29.

Teams may have to 'play their way in' to Final 8 in Halifax

MATTHEW WUEST
matthew.wuest@metronews.ca

BASKETBALL Qualifying for the Final 8 could be a lot different by the time the tournament gets back to Halifax in 2011.

A new system has been proposed that would banish wildcard and conference runner-up berths from the Canadian Interuniversity Sport men's basketball championship and hand those spots to winners of three regional tournaments.

The proposed system would still award berths to conference champions from Atlantic University Sport, Quebec Student Sports Federation, Ontario University Athletics and the Canada West Universities Athletic Association.

It would also continue to award a spot to the host.

The specific details of how the regional tournaments would work are not fully known, but two AUS teams would be among the 12 from across the country

"No one really understood the criteria around the wildcard selections."

AUS executive director Phil Currie

vying for three berths.

The purpose of the change is to reward the strongest teams with spots in the Final 8. There has been heavy debate over whether the current wildcard system accomplishes that.

"The thing I like about it is you've got to play your way in," said AUS executive director Phil Currie. "No one really understood the criteria around the wildcard selections."

"This takes the mystery out of it. You get on the hardwood in the championship because you played to get there."

And if things went well for the AUS — really well — it could place four teams at the Final 8 in 2011, which would be a terrific boost to crowds and financial success.

The proposal still needs to be approved by athletic directors at the CIS annual general meeting in June.

The Carleton Ravens have hosted the Final 8 in Ottawa for the past two years and will host it again next March. The tournament had been held at the Metro Centre for the previous 24 years and will make its return in 2011 and 2012.

Smaller leagues riding out the storm

As major professional sports leagues across the world feel the chilling effects of the economic recession, two leagues have barely even shivered.

The Canadian Football League and Major League Soccer, considered among the low-rent outfits on the pro sports horizon, have emerged as possibly the best-equipped in North America to weather the economic downturn.

Major League Baseball teams are cutting ticket prices. The National Football League has reduced staff and its teams confront the possibility of many unsold seats. Both the NHL and NBA are looking at salary cap reductions because of reduced revenues. The PGA is trembling as sponsors drop out or cut back.

But at the MLS and CFL, it's as close to business as usual as can be expected in these times.

Things look especially rosy with the CFL, which has teetered at the brink of ruin more than once in the past 20 years.

All eight teams report that they are either on par with last season or ahead of the 2008 pace. In fact, despite a 4-14 season, the Toronto Argonauts are experiencing an increase in group and corporate sales.

While some NFL teams have frozen or dropped prices, no CFL franchise has followed.

There's plenty of optimism surrounding the league.

The Montreal Alouettes are kicking in $6 million to expand quaint Percival Molson Stadium by 5,000 seats for next season. There's talk of new stadiums in Hamilton, Winnipeg and Regina and renovation plans in Calgary, Edmonton and B.C.

The MLS, meanwhile, added another team yesterday by expanding to Vancouver while three others were willing to pay the $35 million US franchise fee. Toronto FC is looking at adding another 8,000 seats to BMO Field to accommodate some of the 14,000 fans on its season-ticket waiting list.

What both leagues have going for them above all else is affordable ticket prices.

"Families still want to get out and have a good experience, but the decision on a $500 or $600 season ticket is a lot different than a $10,000, $20,000, $30,000 season ticket," said CFL commissioner Mark Cohon.

It's the same story for the Toronto FC.

"We're feeling some impact, but people continue to need entertainment and we offer reasonably priced tickets," said Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment COO Tom Anselmi.

There's a historical precedent for this. During the Great Depression, people flocked to movie theatres, baseball games and horse racing even though many could barely afford to feed their families.

The common denominators were the fact all offered diversions from hard times and all were relatively cheap compared to other forms of entertainment.

Vancouver awarded MLS franchise

Vancouver won the nod yesterday to join Major League Soccer, a move officials said demonstrates that the league can continue to grow in North America despite the economic crisis.

The Whitecaps, the reigning first division champion of the United Soccer Leagues, will become the MLS's 17th team in 2011, and a league official said the league could announce an 18th team as soon as the end of the week.

Commissioner Don Garber said the 13-year-old MLS, which is North America's top soccer league, remains financially strong despite the "trying times" the economic slowdown has caused for professional sports around the globe.

"As long as we can get through this economy, as with every American and Canadian business, I think we will emerge stronger, particularly when you have new investors coming in with teams 17 and 18," Garber said.

"Our business model is very economically sound," he said.

Vancouver will pay $35 million (all figures US) to join the league, down from $40 million the league had reportedly been asking for, but $5 million above what Seattle paid when it won the fight to join the league this season.

"In this economy it was the right, respectful thing to do to show flexibility on the price, but I'll point out it was more than what Seattle paid at a time when our economy was more robust than in any time in our history," Garber said.

Miami and Atlanta were bidding to join the MLS, but pulled out over ownership and stadium issues. That leaves Ottawa, St. Louis, Missouri, and Portland, Ore., still in the running. Philadelphia joins the league in 2010.

Garber said Ottawa still had to resolve issues about where its team would play. Michael Cramer, a veteran sports executive who now teaches at New York University, said that despite its expansion, he doubts the MLS can survive in North America, where soccer has struggled for a place in the big-time professional sports spotlight.

Only three of the league's teams are believed to be making money, and Cramer questions how long owners will be willing to take losses as they wait for the sport to gain the popularity.

"Vancouver may survive, but they still need a league to play in," Cramer said.

Living in the muck

Spring may be the harbinger of nicer weather, but with it comes mud

HomeScape

Sylvia Putz

metronews.ca/homescape

Spring is on its way. But before we get there, we'll need to contend with mud, rain and wet snow. And that means we'll need to expend energy and time trying to keep mud out of our homes.

But no discussion dealing with mud is complete until you consider those who revel in mud, those who would wallow in it given the first opportunity. Hogs? Maybe, but hogs generally stay outside of houses. No, I was thinking of your average kid.

Kids love mud. They'll carry it into your house not only on their boots, but on their hands, on their butts or knees if they happen to fall into the slush, on their elbows, or in their hair, and on their faces. There is an astounding variety of mud games — paint yourself with mud, get stuck in the mud, make mud pies, build mud dams, slide down fast-melting muddy ice piles. I remember playing with some gusto some of those games myself.

But unfortunately, as an adult, it also brings something much less pleasant: Cleaning chores. At this time of year, the jumble of muddy boots by the door, sitting in a puddle of melting dirty slush, is a depressingly common sight. And then there are the coats, mud-smeared and haphazardly slung over the post at the bottom of the stairs. And wait, what is that pile lying in the slush? The coats that have fallen off the post, naturally. And those muddy footprints leading from the slush pile to other parts of the house?

If you have kids, at this time of year be warned that they most certainly will come home and try to track mud throughout your house.

It's enough to put me in a dark mood, to say the least!

To keep your sanity, remember that the muddy season is temporary. But while it's here, here are some hints to make your life easier:

Kids love mud. They'll carry it into your house not only on their boots, but on their hands, on their butts or knees if they happen to fall into the slush, on their elbows, or in their hair, and on their faces.

- First of all, remember to place mats both inside and outside the door of the main entry, and consider a boot scraper if you live near a major mud zone, such as near construction, or messy road repairs;

- Keep a broom near the entry door to periodically clear away the dirt that may otherwise get tracked into the house;

- If you have an older home without much closet space, keep the front entrance area tidy and uncluttered. If you've only got a little space, a closed wardrobe can work wonderfully, as can a series of attractive storage boxes. Or, consider building a small closet area near the front door but hidden from view. I've seen a very successful coat and boot storage built under the stairs to the second story, or on the landing of the stairs going to the basement;

- Keep boot trays underneath boots in the boot storage area. These will contain muddy water, and can be easily cleaned when necessary;

- If you've got too many coats and jackets to fit into the front entrance area, consider splitting the clothing and boots and storing some at the front and some at a side or back door area. For example, good coats and boots can be kept at the front of the house in a wardrobe, while everyday or children's clothing can be kept on hooks and shelves at the side or back door;

- Of course, the best case scenario is a mud room that has lots of room to store coats, boots, scarves, and sports equipment. Open lockers, one for each member of the family, with hooks and shelves are a great idea. And be sure to finish the floor in a surface-

Some other ideas

- Include a bench in your mud room or entry area. That way, boots and shoes can be comfortably removed and taken to their storage area. Consider combining a bench with a storage area, perhaps as a series of closed boxes (one for each member of the family) with upholstered tops.
- Include waterproof slippers and socks near the bench, so no one has to walk through the wet area.
- Include a place for old towels so that wet and muddy messes can be wiped, plus a rack to dry towels and wet articles of clothing.
- A tall planter can be a lovely accent and a great place to store umbrellas.

—SYLVIA PUTZ

ing that hides dirt and can take moisture and lots of cleaning.

If you're building or renovating, combining the mud room with the laundry area and a sink makes a lot of sense.

Spring flings

Break out the fancy stemware; tomorrow is the first day of spring so, at least according to the calendar, we can officially raise a glass to the end of winter.

In whites, the juice from the viognier and torrontés grapes make for great late March drinking as does Old World riesling. The 2005 Lingenfelder Estate Bird Label Riesling ($16.98 - $18.99) is a well-rounded sipper from Germany's Pfalz region. Distinctively off-dry, it has a universal appeal.

Turning to reds, those from France's Beaujolais and Italy's Valpolicella regions are ideal for laidback contemplation. A great alternative are wines made with the grenache grape — especially in a blend à la Down Under. The 2007 Rosemount Estates Diamond Cellars Grenache Shiraz ($12.95 - $15.96) is a relaxing Aussie with a flowing trail of cranberry fruit that makes you wish it was warm enough to lounge out on your back deck.

Muffins with less stuffin'

À la carte

Barb Holland

metronews.ca/alacarte

Healthy baking is possible. Here is one of my favourite muffin recipes, along with some tips to increase fibre, reduce fat and calories. Not to mention, enjoy fresh home-baked flavour and freshness.

Orange Date Muffins

These are loaded with fibre and they taste good too. Look for soft-pitted dates in the produce section rather than the firm pressed dates in the baking aisle. Makes 12 muffins.

INGREDIENTS:

- 1-1/2 cups (375 ml) whole-wheat flour
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) brown sugar
- 1-1/2 tsp (7 ml) baking powder
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) baking soda
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) salt
- 1 orange, with peel, cut into pieces (remove seeds)
- 1 cup (250 ml) pitted dates
- 3/4 cup (175 ml) butter-milk
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) canola oil
- 1 egg

METHOD:

Preheat oven to 400°F (200°C). Line a muffin pan with non-stick baking cups or spray with nonstick spray.

In medium bowl, combine flour, brown sugar, baking powder, soda and salt.

Alter muffin recipes to make them lower fat, higher fibre.

Toss orange, dates, buttermilk, oil and egg in blender and process until oranges and dates are well chopped (you want some texture). Stir into dry mixture just until blended.

Scoop or spoon batter into muffins cups. Bake 18 to 20 minutes or until toothpick inserted in centre comes out clean. Cool pan on wire rack 5 minutes. Remove muffins from pan to cool completely.

Healthy Baking Tips:

• Increase the fibre and nutritional content by using whole wheat flour, which contains bran. To make it whole grain, use either stone ground whole wheat or try adding 2 tbsp (30 ml) wheat germ to each 1 cup (250 ml) of regular whole wheat flour.

• Use heart-healthy canola oil which has the least amount of saturated fat and a very mild flavour. Canola oil can be used in muffins, cakes and cookies. In a muffin recipe, reduce the amount of oil in your recipe to 1/4 cup (60 ml) and use low fat ingredients such as applesauce, mashed banana, juice, yogurt, buttermilk (1%), low fat or skim milk to replace the remaining oil and liquid.

Guys still call the shots in fashion

Canada's top designers 'a band of brothers'

Why do most of Canada's top designers pee standing up? The answer is obvious — because they're men.

It was hard not to notice at a Holt Renfrew event this week designed specifically to showcase the best in Canadian fashion design that, apart from the models, there wasn't a woman among them.

The retailer's vaunted group of six included Montrealer Denis Gagnon, rising star Jeremy Laing, workaholic Mikhael Kale, menswear dynamo Philip Sparks and the creative duo behind Greta Constantine — Kirk Pickersgill and Stephen Wong. The event was meant to kick off Toronto Fashion Week, where, incidentally, just a third of designers showing are women. Even Holts' boys club is bewildered by the dearth of female talent.

"We were just saying, 'Oh my God, we're all boys!'" Kale notes. "It's like the band of brothers, you know."

Kale, who says he works on three and a half hours of sleep a night, notes he has few responsibilities outside of his sewing studio, which is where he lives. He's not married and does not own a pet.

"No spouse, no kids, no time!" he says. "Have you seen the garments? The detail is insane!"

So what do these successful, youngish men possess that their female counterparts lack?

"Not to be mean, but, we want more," says Pickersgill, a fan of 18-hour days. "That group of us, we all thrive outside of Toronto. We want to be with the big boys."

Veteran Designer David Dixon, who's designed a collection of women's clothing inspired by Barbie for the Bay, offers another theory.

"The approach is different, I think, between male and female designers," he says. "A lot of my female contemporaries who are designing clothes, they're sort of their own muse. It becomes a bit more centralized around who they are as opposed to a larger audience."

For an industry so stereotypically feminine, it seems surprisingly sexist.

Designer Judy Cornish, who created the successful label Comrags 25 years ago with Joyce Gunhouse, has her suspicions.

"Is there a bias in the business community about who can go the distance?"

"A lot of my female contemporaries who are designing clothes, they're sort of their own muse. It becomes a bit more centralized around who they are as opposed to a larger audience."

Designer David Dixon

Cornish wonders. "If you're going to back someone, are you going to back someone who's going to have children, bow out and quit?"

So does it really come down to maternal clocks and who functions best when sleep-deprived?

Jeremy Laing, who designs for princesses in Saudi Arabia, professionals in Hong Kong and girls in Dallas, doesn't think so. He has a spouse and a pet.

For him, success is knowing what sells. "I try to think of a lot of different kinds of women in a lot of different kinds of places to make sure that I'm not sacrificing accessibility for a kind of gay runway fantasy," he says. "Now, especially with the dictates of the economy, is not the time for that."

Mrs. Harper gets mooned at runway show

The tiny butch cop from Corner Gas mooned the prime minister's wife earlier this week in a historic moment for Canadians.

"I'm so excited!" Lauren Harper exclaimed. "It's my first (Toronto) fashion show."

Wearing a Sunny Choi pantsuit and bright red lipstick, Harper joined hundreds of other stylish guests at LG Fashion Week for the Heart Truth Fashion Show, sponsored by the Heart & Stroke Foundation of Canada and the Canadian fashion industry.

The event which featured 20 celebrity "models" wearing red dresses by Canada's top designers.

have made the biggest impression of the night.

Skipping down the runway in a flirty, peasant-style frock by Damzels in this Dress, Spencer-Nairn struck a pose that left little to the imagination.

Her decision to wear racy black bloomers with her garter-belt stockings was last minute. "I said, 'I'm gonna bring the bloomers just in case I fall because I don't want to, you know, scare anybody with a bare bottom,'" Spencer-Nairn explained. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

MSTRKRFT drops new beats

MSTRKRFT
Album: Fist of God
Label: Last Gang/Universal
Rating: ●●●●

MSTRKRFT HAVE LEARNED a thing or two since they released their 2006 debut. Most importantly, the Toronto-based dance duo ditched their obnoxious vocoder in favour of guest artists including Ghostface Killah and John Legend. Thankfully, the group retained their synth-heavy club beats and hyperactive charm, but it's still not enough to transform these guys into world class DJs. The problem lies in precisely what makes them so interesting — nearly every song works well on its own, but about halfway through the disc the frenetic keys and blistering drums get repetitive. It's a decent listen, but they're not done learning yet.

Attack In Black

ATTACK IN BLACK'S Marriage was an album that deserved a lot more praise than it got. The Welland, Ont., band's brand of high energy guitar rock was perhaps too melodic, too catchy, to win the hearts of the in-

Bishop Allen

Album: GRRR...
Label: Dead Oceans
Rating: ●●●●

IF TV AND movies have done anything lately, it's introduce the masses to great indie rock (Death Cab and OC, The Shins and Garden State).

Will Brooklyn's Bishop Allen, who had a cameo in Nick & Norah's Infinite Playlist, find Hollywood-initiated success? Not if their third album is any indication. While it's a pleasant indie pop listen, it's not meaty enough to resonate in a major way. That said, fans of light, infectious choruses and easy-to-sing lyrics will want to give it a spin. It's a solid summer disc, but not much more than that.

The growth of air travel has exposed us to exotic foods from around the globe, while our busier lifestyles have created a demand for food we don't cook. Metro Recipe of the Day

Roast Beef Hash

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 lb (500 g) small red-skinned potatoes, cut into 1/4-in. (0.5-cm) dice
- 2 carrots, quartered lengthwise and thinly sliced
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) plus 2 tsp (10 ml) olive oil
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 1/4 cups (300 ml) frozen corn
- 3/4 tsp (4 ml) salt
- 1/4 tsp (6 ml) black pepper
- 6 oz (175 g) cooked roast beef, cut into 1/3-in. (1-cm) dice

METHOD:

1. Cook potatoes in medium pot of boiling water until almost tender, about 6 minutes. Add carrots and cook 2 minutes longer. Drain.
2. Spray large nonstick skillet with nonstick cooking spray. Add 1 tbsp (15 ml) oil and heat over medium-low heat. Add onion and garlic to skillet and cook, stirring frequently, until onion is golden brown, about 7 minutes.

3. Increase heat to medium-high. Add remaining 2 tsp (10 ml) oil. Add potatoes and carrots, corn, salt and black pepper. Cook, stirring occasionally, until mixture starts to form a crust, about 10 minutes.

4. Stir in beef and press down on mixture to help form a crust. Cook until crusty on bottom, about 5 minutes.

Charitable Britney fears death threats

PEOPLE Britney Spears — who performs her second show in Toronto tonight — is planning to visit sick children when her tour comes to London, England, in June, femalefirst.co.uk reports.
The singer was so moved by her visit to Miami Children's Hospital earlier this month she has decided to repeat the experience at Britain's Great Ormond Street hospital.
A source said: "She would really like to do this. In Miami she met up with 40 kids and posed for pictures with them."
"She found it really moving that just a couple of minutes with the children could mean so much to them."
The 27-year-old star is due to bring her Circus tour — which kicked off in New Orleans two weeks ago — to London's O2 arena in two months, but is already threatening to cancel her remaining shows after receiving death threats.
The website says Spears is reportedly worried the lives of her sons Sean Preston, three, and Jayden James, two, could be in danger following the menacing messages.

A source said: "Britney received some anonymous death threats over the phone and in the mail, and her worst fear is a kidnap plot against Sean or Jayden. She's been having terrible nightmares ever since then and she wakes up in the middle of the night crying out for her boys."
"She told her head of security and he thinks it's a lone stalker. Her paranoia has reached fever pitch and she's wracked with fear," femalefirst.co.uk quotes the source as saying.

Welcome to marriage: Jon to Vince

ADVICE Vince Vaughn, let your pal Jon Favreau be the first one to welcome you to the "day shift," people.com is suggesting.

Favreau, who has been married with children for a number of years, talked to People about his friend and costar's recent engagement at the L.A. premiere of I Love You, Man, and what that means for Vaughn's lifestyle.

"Vince has been single for a number of years and we've been on different schedules," Favreau said. "He was sort of on the night shift; I was on the day shift, living on opposite ends of town."

And, he admits, as he settled down, "town" got smaller. "My trick really so far has been to work in town. I won't work on movies that as a director take me out of town."

"I like to be in California so I can be involved with my kids' school life, their personal life and be a dad and a husband," he said. "And that helps balance out the crazy hours and bigger than life career that I'm lucky to have."

As for his own history with Vaughn — the 38-year-old ladies' man who is finally settling down himself with Albertan Kyla Weber — the guy friends have come full circle, it seems.

"It was nice to work with him on Couples Retreat, and that movie is about couples, and it was interesting to explore that with him after our first experience with Swingers. And that was about being single. So, I think as our lives change, the subject matter of our movies change too, reflecting our lives," Favreau said.

He added: "I wish Vince the best. He's always been a smart guy. He's always been decisive at everything he does in his life and his career. I'm always impressed with his choices and the way that he goes about things."

Anna's funny life philosophy

PEOPLE Anna Faris has the perfect solution for dealing with challenging situations: Find the humour in everything, people.com reports.

"I'm embarrassed on almost a daily basis," Faris, 32, tells Self magazine for its April issue. "You sort of have to suck it up sometimes."

Take, for instance, when fans approach The House Bunny star.

Often, she says, the conversations are less than tactful.

"They say stuff like, 'You're so much shorter in person,'" Faris says. "Or 'Oh, my god, you look just like that girl, but you are a lot prettier than she is.'"

"You have to grin and bear it," Faris says. "I might say in return, 'I know I looked skinnier in The House Bunny, but thanks to my diet of beer and doughnuts, I'm back to my fightin' weight!'"

The funny actress says she developed her sense of humour over the years after being raised in a strict environment with conservative parents.

"Anything with a V-neck was forbidden," she says of her regimented childhood.

In fact, Faris still strives for her parents' approval. "Even though I'm now in my 30s, I still have my parents sort of haunting me to 'act appropriate' and 'have good manners,'" she says, noting that she's found a way to deal with the issue. "I buy my mom off," Faris jokes. "With the Scary Movies, I started giving her Louis Vuitton handbags."

"Now she wants a villa in Tuscany," she says. "I've created a monster!"
